The art of decoration

Artists, often Greek, richly decorate homes and public spaces.

The main decorations are:

Mosaics: decorations made of tiny tesserae
(=small cubes of colored stones), generally found on the floors of houses.

Museo archeologico Napoli

• Frescoes: colorful paintings on walls or sometimes ceilings.

Museo archeologico Napoli

• Sculptures: Statues often made of marble, sometimes bronze, and basreliefs (sculptures on flat surfaces), usually in marble.

The She-wolf of Rome

Sacrificial Scene

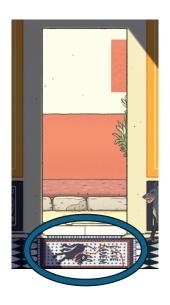

Museo archeologico Napoli

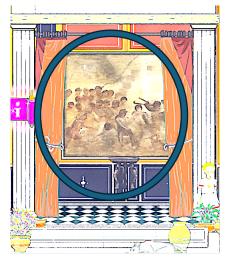

Capitoline Museum Roma

Altar of Vespasian, Pompeii

These decorations represent scenes from daily life or mythology.

A little exercise: The images below, copied from the Domus Sabinus in the game Danger in Pompeii, show three types of decorations. Indicate whether they are a mosaic, a fresco, or a sculpture.

Worksheet: game Danger in Pompeii Student's Name:

Sculptures :
Sculptures point of interest on the forum:
Indicate your two favorite sculptures and explain why they are your favorites:
For the sculptures below, copied from the game, indicate if they are statues (S) or bas-reliefs (B-R), whether they are made of marble (M) or bronze (B), and what they represent (e.g., emperor on horseback, sacrificial scene, politician, Apollomand Diana).